Bradfield Riding Centre Fire – Update

Fire crews are currently still damping down at the scene of the Bradfield Riding Centre fire. The bungalow has been completely destroyed by fire. Initial investigations indicate that the cause of the fire was possibly electrical.

It is thought that the fire started in the roof of the property. Fortunately, the residents were alerted to the fire by their hard-wired smoke detector and were able to leave the house safely. All the horses were also successfully evacuated by riding centre staff.

Jacky White, owner of Bradfield Riding Centre, said: “Thankfully, all of the staff and horses are safe and unhurt. The stables will still be open for business this weekend.”
